In nomination for the Presidency, and California would be happy, through him, to express her preference. Upon that question there could be no doubt what the preference of California would be, for she owed a debt to that man of the mountains, John C. Fremont (great applause), which she desired to repay. California asked this Convention to consider the claims of the man who hoisted the flag that commenced the war against popery in her borders. With Fremont they could carry California. (Applause.) Although Fremont was her decided preference, yet she would co-operate with them in any high minded and honerable movement for the success of the great cause which they had se much at heart. (Applause.)

Plause.)

Mr. Williamson, of Pa., moved that they proceed to the fourth ballot, which was seconded.

Some considerable confusion prevailing.
The Charkkan (ex.Gov. Colvy), of N. H., shouted, "Keep quiet, every one of you." (Great laughter.) — Mr. Prex, of Conn., moved that they adjourn until Mondey morning, at 10 o'clock.

(Cries of "No, no.")

The question was then taken, and it was decided in the negative.

The question was then taken, and it was decreased in negative.

A motion was then made that they adjourn until Monday at 12 o clock, which was disagreed to.

Mr. SCHAPPER thought they had better have a recoss, that the delegates might consuit with each other.

(Cries of "Question, question.")

The Charman—"What question?" (Laughter.)

A DELEGATE from Pennsylvania said that one-third of the delegation from Pennsylvania had already gone, and he wanted to know whether they were to have another ballot.

ballot.

The question was then again taken upon the motion to adjourn until Monday next at 12 o'clock M., and it was decided in the negative.

The Charman (ex Governor Colby, of New Hampshire,) declared that the vote would be taken over again for the hird time, and having called for the vote, he declared the motion for adjournment carried, amid great laughter, Ithough there were at least four nrys to one aye.

So the Convention adjourned until Monday, at 12 o'clock M.
